

Post-Pandemic Challenges with Human Capital for Large Employers

Meet David Levy, CEO of EHE Health, and Greg Mansur, Chief Client Officer, as they explore why a company's people strategy in the pandemic and post-pandemic era continues to point to preventive health as a central principle and active solution.

David Levy
CEO of EHE Health

Topics Addressed in the Episode

- What are the factors contributing to challenges with people strategy today?
- Why is preventive health an incredibly viable and valuable approach for businesses to take?

Key Highlights

The Pressures on People Strategy Today

- “We're dealing with a nasty situation where people have avoided their preventive health visits for sometimes up to two years, we're going to be seeing rising incidence of cancer and other cardiovascular illnesses. We can see declining health status as a result of that.”
- “The workforce has changed, people are leaving the workforce.”
- “We're going to have inflation that we really haven't seen in 10 or 15 years. In general, healthcare cost inflation is about three times the consumer price index. Everybody knows what the consumer price index has been doing. In the past few months, no letup insight. So I think our health economists will tell us what this is going to be looking like. So we're really in a whole new environment.”

On Preventive Health as a Business Solution

- “I don't know of any other solution besides prevention at this point. In the end, I really do not know of anything, there's no magic. There's no magic anymore. Here we are right now. And I think that we're at a moment in time where I think we can be really helpful to our clients and, and to employers at large.”
- “I think for large employers, if you can't think about how to measure properly, you're never going to figure out how to manage properly.”

Resources from This Episode

EHE Webinar “Pandemic after the Pandemic”: <https://youtu.be/igPb7kW1LiA>
Healthcare Inflation, McKinsey: <https://mck.co/3SOW0BW>

Watch this episode and more videos in The Future of Work Series here.

Want to know more about how you can improve the health of your business? Get in touch with us.